

Bucharest Gets Quiet Day; 6,000 Killed in Revolt

German and Rumanian Troops Patrol City; Civil War Still Flares in Sections
British Advance
Advance Forces Pass Beyond Tobruk; Greeks Make Gains

(By The Associated Press)
First dispatches out of revolt-torn Bucharest, scene of four days of bloody civil strife, said many hospitals were full of wounded amid mounting death lists today as German and Rumanian motorized troops patrolled the Balkan capital's streets.

"This is the first day since Sunday that the din of revolver, rifle, machine-gun and artillery fire has not filled the air," wrote Robert St. John, Associated Press correspondent in Bucharest.

Reports reaching Sofia, Bulgaria, said casualties throughout Rumania totalled 6,000, with 2,000 dead in Bucharest morgues alone.

While the rebellion evidently was quelled in the capital, dispatches agreed that the insurgent Iron Guardists were still fiercely resisting outside Bucharest—especially in such cities as Brasov, Giurgiu, the port of Constanta, Ploesti, Cantina and Craiova.

"Many important buildings are badly battle-scarred," St. John's censor-passed dispatch from Bucharest said. "One window of the telephone building has 78 bullet holes in it."

Shops Are Wrecked
"Across the street, a whole line of smart shops was wrecked by army fire. An eight-story apartment house in which snipers operated . . . had every window shattered."

"But platforms in front of the National Theatre were red with blood. . . . Across the street lay a pile of blood-soaked hats and shoes of victims . . ."

In North Africa, military circles predicted the British army of the Nile would follow up the capture of Tobruk with an intensified offensive on the entire African front.

British Forces Advance
British advance forces were reported already sweeping west and south of Derna, 95 miles beyond Tobruk on the Libyan coast, and some quarters believed Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell might attempt to push straight across the Cirenean "hump" to attack Bengasi, 150 miles west of Derna.

On the Albanian front, the Greeks reported they had thrown back heavy Italian counterattacks in some of the most intense fighting of the war and now had started a new offensive north of Klisura.

A Greek spokesman said 250 Fascist prisoners had been taken, along with quantities of mortars, machine-guns and other materials and several new mountain heights and villages had been captured.

Premier Mussolini's high command, noting only "patrol actions" in the war with Greece, acknowledged that British warplanes had bombed Italy's big naval and air base on the Isle of Rhodes, in the eastern Mediterranean.

The British said they took at least 14,000 Italians in the assault on Tobruk. Another report from Australia said Army Minister Percy Spender had received word that 25,000 prisoners had been taken and that Australian casualties "would not exceed 300."

State Budget Awaited
By Albany Lawmakers

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—The accuracy of predictions that Governor Lehman's 1941-42 budget will curtail spending and avoid additional taxes will determine the length and harmony of the legislature's session.

Should introduction of the program Monday night confirm such forecasts, voiced in some taxpayer and Republican legislative quarters, renewal of the prolonged "budget battles" of the last two years probably would be prevented.

With the Republican majority committed to government economy and "no new taxes," however, any recommendation by Lehman for increased levies or appropriations above the current $393,000,000 seems certain to cause bitter wrangling.

While aware that defense legislation might delay adjournment, majority leaders hope to speed its consideration and end the session by April 1.

Despite Lehman's announcement that defense would put "several millions" into the budget, a Republican spokesman expressed belief other government savings could balance defense costs and forecast a "slightly lower" budget and no new taxes.

Detail Unknown In Murder-Profit Ring Is Death Toll

Last of 25 Defendants Is Convicted and Will Receive Life Term; Four Will Die

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (AP)—One detail only was lacking today from the gruesome records of Philadelphia's almost unbelievable murder-for-insurance ring—the exact number of its victims, which investigators estimate could total 100.

The last of 25 defendants in a syndicate whose deals in death gave a bizarre new chapter to the history of crime was convicted of first degree murder last night.

She is Mrs. Agnes Mandiuk, 44, and the jury's recommendation for mercy, if it stands, will send her to join 10 others sentenced to life imprisonment for their part in an enterprise which tried to thrive on sandbagging, drownings, fake automobile accidents and poisonings.

Two men and two women also have been condemned to die in the electric chair. Five persons were given long prison terms. Two others are awaiting sentence. Three were acquitted. Twelve of the 25 are women, most of them widows.

Traces of Poison
The state said it found traces of poison in the body of Romaine Mandiuk, a modest baker whose life was insured for $13,000, and accused his wife of administering the deadly dose to collect the money.

His untimely death was but one—authorities are convinced the total may never be known—uncovered after a secret service informer looking for counterfeiters more than three years ago was offered a sum to kill a man.

F.D.R. May Meet Anglo Official

Roosevelt Does Not Deny Possibility He Might Motor to Greet Lord Halifax
Meets Winant

President Has Parley With New Hampshire Man

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—A possibility that President Roosevelt might personally motor to Annapolis, Md., this afternoon to meet Lord Halifax developed today after a London announcement that the battleship King George V was bringing the new British ambassador to the United States.

The President was secretive about his plans, and where and when the ambassador would arrive, when asked for details at his regular press conference. But he would not deny it when asked directly whether he would go to meet Halifax.

The fact that the President made no afternoon engagements prompted speculation on the possibility that he might break precedent once more and travel 40 miles by automobile to greet the new ambassador.

Yacht Is in Bay
Another factor lending strength to this belief was the presence in Chesapeake Bay of the presidential yacht Potomac, which the Chief Executive frequently uses for week-end cruises on the bay and up the Potomac river to Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that secrecy had surrounded Halifax's trip because publicity might have jeopardized human life.

The yacht Potomac arrived in Annapolis last night and was anchored next to the U. S. Naval Academy station ship with a supply ship that ordinarily carries secret service agents lying nearby.

Naval Academy officials took special precautions to prevent presence of unauthorized persons on the academy grounds this afternoon.

Possibility was seen that the Potomac might be used to bring the distinguished visitors ashore. The 35,000-ton warship was reported proceeding slowly up foggy Chesapeake Bay after passing the capes at 7 a. m.

The President said he might have an announcement later in the day as to where and when the former British foreign secretary would land.

(In London it was disclosed the new battleship King George V, was bringing Lord and Lady Halifax to the United States. Shipping sources in Baltimore said the battleship would anchor off Annapolis, Md., in Chesapeake Bay about 2 or 3 p. m. today.)

(London, Jan. 24 (AP)—Lord Halifax, new British ambassador to Washington, and Lady Halifax probably will land today at Norfolk, Va., from the new battleship King George V, informed sources here disclosed.

Admiralty Communique
(An admiralty communique said:

"(Lord Halifax, His Majesty's ambassador-designate to the United States, and Lady Halifax will land in America today en route for Washington.)

"(Lord and Lady Halifax have crossed the Atlantic in the battleship HMS King George V.)"

Mr. Roosevelt also disclosed that he had conferred this morning with John G. Winant, former Republican governor of New Hampshire, who has been mentioned for appointment as the new United States ambassador to Great Britain, but he added that (Continued on Page 12)

House Committee Votes Secret Session To Hear Testimony of Army, Navy, Air Corps Chiefs on British Aid Program

Lion of Judah Exults

Selassie Returns to Ethiopia to Aid British Campaign in Africa

Somewhere in Ethiopia, (via Khartoum), Jan. 15 (Delayed) (AP)—Ex-Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia proudly raised the red, yellow and green flag of his former kingdom in a hidden mountain clearing here today, then set off to the interior to head British-aided Ethiopian tribesmen fighting their Italian conquerors.

In an imperial proclamation, he exhorted his tribesmen to "raise arms against the enemy who have come to destroy your race, rob your property, belittle your glory, pollute your blood. Wipe him from the face of Ethiopia."

The bearded former conquering Lion of Judah, driven from his throne in 1936 by Premier Mussolini's troops, came back to Ethiopia in a British army plane. He flew from Khartoum, British headquarters in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan where he had conferred in recent weeks with tribal chieftains who slipped across the frontier to plan with him the rearming of Ethiopian natives with British guns.

Accompanying him were a British liaison officer, Ras Kassa, his former war minister; and a high dignitary of the Ethiopian church.

The Negus, exultant and determined, gazed down searchingly at the plane circling over the wooded hills of his former kingdom, seeking the cunningly concealed landing field prepared by his soldiers. Then the pilot swung his craft down through a narrow clearing, its wings clearing trees on either side by a bare ten feet as it came to rest.

A British staff major greeted the ex-emperor and party and accompanied them on a short journey to an Ethiopian encampment where dignitaries taking part in the welcoming ceremony included the former crown prince of Ethiopia.

Petain Creates New National Council To Aid Government
Assembly to Give Advice Under Provisional Form; Members Will Not Get Fixed Terms

Vichy, France, Jan. 24 (AP)—A new national council of nearly 200 members was created by Chief of State Philippe Petain today to share with the responsibility of directing the government.

An announcement by Petain more than a month ago forecast formation of the assembly said it would "give advice and assure useful contact between the chief of state and the people."

The new body will be only provisional until a new constitution is created, it was explained, and while including many members of the old senate and chamber of deputies will not replace these two bodies.

Havas, French News Agency, reported that the official journal would publish the new law creating the council and would name its members.

They will not be appointed for fixed terms.

The council will have neither constitutional nor legislative powers. It will be consulted only on questions submitted by Petain and its decisions will be only "advice" to the chief of state, who need not follow it.

Not only parliamentarians, but more than 40 representatives from agriculture, an "appreciable contingent" from industry, prominent intellectuals and members of liberal professions are to be given membership.

Members of trade unions, skilled workers and city and farm workers also will have a proportionally larger place than in the last elected parliaments. A war veterans' organization also will have members.

Most members have more than four children and some have seven, nine and even 11. This was taken as a "sure guarantee" that the principle of family would be protected.

Gallup, N. M., Jan. 24 (AP)—Albert, 26 year old Zuni Indian rain priest, has been given a deferred classification under selective service. The draft board held the rain priest was entitled to the same consideration given ministers of other religions.

Italian Officer Says Nation Not Behind Campaign

Says That War Is Alliance Between Two Men, Not Two Peoples; Hopes Duce Will 'Go'

By LARRY ALLEN

Aboard a British troop transport in the Mediterranean, Jan. 24 (AP)—An Italian officer, one of 500 beaten, sand-whipped Italian soldier-prisoners arriving at Alexandria today as the vanguard of the 20,000 reported taken at Tobruk, told this correspondent that "this war is the result of an alliance between two men, Hitler and Mussolini, not a pact between two peoples."

He was one of three Italian army men shot down by British planes. All three declared that the Italian people did not want war with Britain and that Italy had been "duped" by the Axis leaders.

"We know the Germans hate us," the one officer asserted, "and we hate them. No one in Italy wanted this war. We only wanted peace. We are proud of our country, not our leader."

Could Only Obey Order
"We as soldiers could only obey the order to fight. I think the people of Italy some day will get rid of Mussolini. Fascist Italy will die and a great new Italy will be born."

Another officer told me that while the economic conditions of Italy were worsening, the Italian army in Libya did not lack food.

"We had spaghetti, macaroni, meats, fruit and plenty of bread and wine every day," he said. "There is no truth to reports that our army is half-starved, unless it be for peace."

The 500 arrived at Alexandria, Britain's big eastern Mediterranean naval base, aboard this British transport, enroute to internment. They sang lilting Italian songs all the way from their point of embarkation to Alexandria.

From the dock they were taken aboard camouflaged trucks to railway flatcars for their journey to the Egyptian interior.

Only five of the 500 were wounded.

Mediterranean fleet units, having shelled Tobruk, now face a big task in transporting the prisoners. The British estimate that Marshal Graziani has lost at least two-fifths of his original force, which is believed to have numbered 260,000, by captures or casualties.

Both Are Safe
Scranton, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—A 20-year-old girl and her mother, walking across a railroad trestle last night, were trapped by an oncoming freight train. The girl, Romayne Cafferty, chose to leap into a shallow stream 62 feet below. The mother, Mrs. Catherine Cafferty, 51, murmuring a prayer, flattened herself on the ties, hoping that the train would pass over safely. The engineer stopped the locomotive a few feet from the mother. The daughter suffered a back injury.

He Made His Own
Cincinnati, Jan. 24 (AP)—Police in suburban Norwood today questioned a 16-year-old high school sophomore in connection with circulation of counterfeit nickels. Sgt. Oakley Wilson reported seeing the boy put the coins in a candy vending machine and said he admitted casting them in a mold made of plaster of Paris obtained at the school.

John Oxenham Dies

Lodge Matron Quiets 350 Persons, Leads Them From Burning Hall
Wellesley, Mass., Jan. 24 (AP)—Saved from a fire that had trapped them on a third floor last night, 350 members of the Order of Eastern Star showered credit today on Mrs. Hazel F. Murray, worthy matron, for averting a possible panic.

Clad in evening gowns and tuxedos, about 200 persons descended a fire escape to which she led them, in the rear of the building, and the other 150 made their way to safety over ladders placed against the building meanwhile by firemen.

Excitement prevailed when the lodge members discovered in the midst of elaborate installation ceremonies that flames on the first two floors had blocked escape down the stairways, but it subsided when Mrs. Murray, on a rostrum, said:

"Listen to me. Everyone can get out safely if we file two by two and go down the fire escape. Everything will be all right if we don't lose our heads."

Following her instructions, until the ladders formed an additional means of egress, the entire gathering reached the street safely, with no injuries being reported.

Damage to the structure was estimated by Fire Chief Thomas Slamin at $8,000.

Hats Off to Lindbergh Is German Reaction

Berlin, Jan. 24 (AP)—"Hats off to Charles Lindbergh for the courage shown," was the reaction of authorized German sources today to the American aviator's deposition before a United States house committee, yesterday.

"In view of the moral terrorism exerted by interventionists this courage shown is exemplary," they said.

(Lindbergh testified at hearings on the lease-lend bill, which he described as a "major step" toward hostilities. He said he wanted a victory for neither side in the war because "it would be a disaster for Europe if either side won.")

"It is doubtful whether many individuals in the United States can be found in prominent positions who are willing to act as courageously, although many feel as Lindbergh does," they added.

Opposes Bill

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, columnist and former N. R. A. chief, struck this pose as he told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that he was opposed to the lend-lease bill because it constituted a "defensive and offensive alliance" with Great Britain.

Court Refuses Appeal to Divine

Judgment for Mrs. Brown for $5,949.57 Stands, Appeals Court Says

The highest court of New York's highest court has refused to review Father Divine's appeal for reversal of a $5,949.57 judgment granted Mrs. Verinda Brown, one of Father Divine's flock who sought to recover property which she had turned over to the Divine "heavenly treasury" back in 1929 when she and her husband felt the urge and joined the Divine cult.

A decision of the Court of Appeals handed down yesterday refuses to review the appeal of Father Divine who asked for a reversal of the judgment which was granted by the Supreme Court of New York city and upheld by the Appellate Division.

Originally the action was brought by Mrs. Brown against Father Divine for the purpose of recovering personal property which (Continued on Page 12)

Attempt by Fish to Have Testimony Made Public Is Blocked by 13 to 10 Vote

'Politics' Is Heard

Republican Members Stay Out of Meeting, Except Fish

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Democratic members of the House foreign affairs committee voted today to hear in secret session testimony by the heads of the army, navy and air corps on the aid-to-Britain bill.

The decision was reached at a closed meeting of the majority after Republican members had refused to join in a discussion of the question.

When the full committee reconvened, it agreed to recess until 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) after voting down, 13 to 10 on strictly party lines, an effort by Rep. Fish (R., N. Y.) to have General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Major General George H. Brett, acting chief of the army air corps, testify in public.

Before this decision, Chairman Bloom (D., N. Y.) issued the following statement:

"The full committee, in a prior executive session, had authorized Representative Fish, the ranking minority member, to invite whatever witnesses he wished 'as minority witnesses.' Representative Fish invited Admiral Stark, General Marshall and General Brett."

"Subsequent to the invitations issued by Mr. Fish and after their names had been announced at Mr. Fish's request, the witnesses, in conversation with the chairman of the committee, asked whether or not the committee had invited them to appear as witnesses, to which the chairman replied that the committee had authorized Mr. Fish to invite such witnesses as he desired 'as minority witnesses.'"

Invitation Suggested
"The witnesses suggested a committee invitation and stated that they preferred to be heard in executive session."

Bloom also made public this text of his statement: "I said Marshall had written Fish."

"With reference to your invitation for me to appear before the foreign relations committee in connection with H. R. 1776, I was informed by the chairman of the committee last night that my presence had not been requested by the committee."

"In view of the fact that my testimony would be that of the chief of staff of the army, rather than that of an individual, I would prefer to appear on the request of the committee. I take the liberty of suggesting that if my presence is desired by the committee, the hearing be in executive session in order that I might make complete and frank replies to the questions that probably would be asked."

Bloom said that in view of these facts, the Democratic majority unanimously had agreed to extend Marshall, Stark, and Brett invitations to testify and had assured the officials that their testimony would be heard behind closed doors.

Fish originally had asked that the three military men be summoned by subpoena.

When the committee was called to order, Representative Luther A. Johnson (D.-Tex.) said:

"I think Mr. Fish has some witnesses."

"I don't know whether I have or not," replied Fish, who has been marshalling the opposition forces.

"The committee will go into executive session," Bloom said. Representative Vorys (R.-O.) demanded a roll call on this question. The Republican members voted no, but the tally was 11 to eight to close the session to the public and move into a private committee room.

Fish told reporters he would insist that the military experts appear in open session. The New Yorker said that in inviting the officers, he had told them they would be expected to testify publicly but that they need not answer any "embarrassing questions."

'Derelict in Duty'
Asserting the lease-lend bill vitally concerned national defense, Fish declared the committee would be "derelict in its duty if we do not have expert testimony."

"I guess Bloom doesn't want them to testify," Fish added.

When the Democratic committee members retired to a private room for the executive session, all the Republicans except Fish remained behind, chatting and talking with newsmen.

British Turn to Derna, Bengasi After Tobruk's Fall

With Tobruk captured in a 16-day siege, the British predicted drives on Derna and Bengasi would succeed by spring. The 3,000-foot Gebel el-Achdar mountains provided a natural line of Italian defense. Tobruk, with the only good natural harbor in Libya, now becomes a base to supply Britain's advancing troops.

Woman Held for Thefts

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—A gray-haired, 61-year-old mother of two grown children has been charged with forgery in alleged thefts totaling $13,000 from a Brooklyn concern which had employed her as payroll clerk for 29 years. The woman, Mrs. Catherine C. Carmody, held in $5,000 bail yesterday, admitted the thefts when arrested. Investigator William Murphy said, but she explained that she had considered her $1,600-a-year salary too small for anyone who had worked for the concern—the Decorated Metal Manufacturing Company—as long as she had. "Others were getting more than I," Murphy quoted her.

Woman's Press Club of New York city.

Mrs. Amelia B. Moorfield, club president, will present a $175 check to Miss Bradley at a club meeting tomorrow afternoon. The scholarship has been given annually since 1920.

A native of St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada, Miss Bradley was graduated last June from Victoria College of the University of Toronto. She was assistant woman's editor of "Varsity," the university's daily newspaper.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Giovanni C. Manuli never could convince his wife that America was "the promised land."

On grounds of desertion Judge John A. Cornell granted him a divorce from the woman he left in Italy 25 years ago.

While planes of the 88th Reconnaissance Squadron, Fort Douglas, Utah, bomb a target area south of Tucson, a number of pilots will be on patrol duty to keep the public away.

City Manager George Seeley procured horses for the "grounded" airmen.

NEW PALTZ

Paltz Club Meets

New Paltz, Jan. 24—After congratulations on the birthday of the president, Edgar V. Beebe, the Paltz Club settled down to its regular meeting, Wednesday night at Tamneys Hotel where dinner was served. Mr. Beebe appointed Mr. Kurtz, Mr. Jansen and Mr. Wood on the nominating committee. Alex Gronman was elected as a member of the club.

The Club is known for its unusual programs but none have been more unique than that of Wednesday night for which Joseph E. Hasbrouck was responsible. Mr. Louis of the American Museum of the Palisade Park Division entertained with some of his collection, first a woodchuck started at one end of the table and cleaned up all the coffee cups and ate up all the sugar and crumbs until he arrived at the head of the table the animal stopped now and then to have its ears scratched by members of the group.

The backs of the chairs were decorated with live hawks who stayed for two hours and then went back into their cages. Mr. Louis described the hawks of various kinds and the guest of honor was carried around in the arms of the one individual and was a three or four year old, full grown skunk.

Mr. Louis stated that New York state has 20 or more different kinds of hawks which can be called local. He also said that eagles continued in New York state. Mr. Louis also has snakes in his collection but did not bring them with him to New Paltz this time. The club is hoping to have Mr. Louis with them again.

Orchids from a Holly Grower

ORDINARILY we don't go in for owner-testimonials, figuring you hear enough praise of Buick from owners you know.

But every now and then, along comes a letter that so perfectly portrays the way Buick owners feel about their cars that we haven't the heart to keep it from you.

So, with properly modest blushes for the orchidaceous quality of his comments, we quote from Mr. Ambrose Brownell, English holly grower of Milwaukie, Ore., who wrote to his dealer:

"... When I drove that '41 SUPER out of Flint... and started a circle trip home... I jotted down each gas purchase and mileage to sort of figure my expenses...

"It wasn't long before I got suspicious of something wrong... The gas gauge needle just didn't go down fast enough... I finally confided my fears to a Service Station attendant and he agreed that there were no 20 miles per gallon in that bus and that my figures must be screwy.

"But, Roy, all the way home it was the same story. The Buick wormed through miles of city traffic... made numberless stops to inquire directions, purred along in sizzling heat that made my feet feel like two fried eggs, breezed over the Rockies at 9,000 elevation... and finally fairly stole home through the sinuous Columbia Gorge. Loaded with baggage... Buick never wasted a breath or raised a bead of perspiration.

"Statistics? Of course: 3,220 miles; 165 gallons... Ethyl gas; 19.51 miles per gallon; gas expense—1.00¢ per mile; total out-of-pocket expense—1.00¢ per mile.

"... Roy, I'm glad I bought a Buick."

Mr. Brownell has other nice things to say about his Compound Carburetion-equipped 1941 SUPER.

But the point is that everywhere Buick is running up such astonishing records for thrift that letters like this are commonplace.

Chances are your own dealer has facts and figures on local Buicks operating under your own driving conditions—why not drop in, inquire about them, and try out the thrifty traveler that brings us orchids from a holly grower?

NO FARM SPECULATION

In his final report as secretary of agriculture, Henry A. Wallace (now Vice President of the United States) gave farmers some advice.

He cautioned them against the temptation, because of defense spending, to speculative production or land buying. The war has damaged this country's foreign markets and, even after the war, it may not be possible to "rush back into full competitive production," he warned.

On the other hand, it may be necessary for farmers to make additional crop shifts and further reduce some crops. Farm-aid programs may have to be overhauled because of the problems arising out of the war, the defense program and peace, when it comes.

The conditions which have upset agriculture in recent years may last indefinitely Mr. Wallace continued. Although some perils may be overcome or lessened by the government commodity loans and the ever-normal granary, it will be wise to adapt production more nearly to a domestic basis.

We still have the curious problem of want and over-production at the same time, but it is true that there has been progress in solving it. A long view and temporary restraints should not only help toward a solution but should lessen the bumps and shocks caused by the present world upheaval.

CHURCH COOPERATION

One of the events linked with it but held in advance of the presidential inauguration was an interdenominational church service in Washington. It was held in the "Court of Freedom"—the stand outside the White House from which Mr. Roosevelt was to review the inaugural parade—by a group of local clergymen. No doubt their own congregations were joined by men and women of other churches.

The men who conducted the service were the Rev. John Keating, Roman Catholic; the Rev. Seth R. Brooks, Universalist; Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, and the Rev. Albert J. McCartney, Presbyterian.

There were many things about the inauguration which might have given pause to dictators pushing ahead in their program of conquest and enslavement. Not the least of them was that church service which showed so well America's ideal and practice of tolerance and freedom of worship.

GOOD WILL STEAMER RATES

The United States Maritime Commission is supplementing the good neighbor policy with good business policy. It has offered a half fare arrangement to American students or teachers who want to study or lecture in any Latin American country.

The special rates will be open to teachers who plan to spend three months in the country to which they are going, and to post-graduates, research scholars and others. Wives and children of teachers or students may be taken along at the same rate.

The plan should work both ways, offering special rates to students or teachers coming from Latin American countries to the United States. There's more to peace and cooperation than this, of course; yet every contact encouraged, whether of tourists or scholars or musicians or others, is so much to the good.

FIGHT FIRE TO BUILD DEFENSE

There is an easy way for everyone to make a definite contribution to national defense this year. That way is by helping to prevent fire.

National defense involves the conservation of our resources—manufactured as well as natural. Every fire, no matter how small, means the destruction of resources. It means a waste of labor, and of productive capacity. It means the diversion of materials which would be used for other purposes. That is true whether a fire destroys home or factory.

Those whose job it is to prevent fire are redoubling their efforts at this time. They are working to reduce fire's 1941 ravages. But, efficient as this work is, it cannot achieve maximum success without full public cooperation. The manager of an industry, the home owner and the worker must share in the responsibility. Fire is everybody's business, not just the other fellow's business. Fire costs everybody money.

If past precedent holds, America's fire bill, direct and indirect, will come close to $2,000,000,000 this year. That bill can be cut 80 per cent.

There is nothing difficult about fire prevention. It isn't expensive. It simply calls for periodic inspections of our homes and places of business to get rid of accumulations of waste, to repair faulty furnaces, to check exposed electric wiring, to see that inflammables are properly stored in safe containers, etc. This year make it a point to fight fire and so help build America's defenses.

PRODUCTION RIVALRY

An "authorized Nazi spokesman" in Berlin says it is impossible that the United States and Great Britain together should ever catch up with German production of airplanes and accessories, and thus win the war. He is sure of this because "the high degree of standardization of German plane production, made possible by the state-controlled economic system."

This is a characteristic bit of bragging. The authority quoted entirely overlooks the fact that it was private American industry which invented quantity production by standardization, and that our industry today leads the world in this field. If the war lasts a year longer, the fact should be very clearly demonstrated.

When Franklin Roosevelt gives Wendell Willkie a letter of introduction to Winston Churchill addressed "To a Certain Naval Person," we can't help suspecting that all three of 'em like international mystery stories.

BEST IS TREATMENT OF WAR NEUROSES

When the men returned from the last war it was found that many of them were unable to take over the situations they had held for years before going overseas. Some of these situations required physical effort only, others only mental effort, and still others required both physical and mental effort.

Physicians had some difficulty at first in fully appreciating what had happened to these men. Thus an accountant at his old position was unable to work a full day and had to go home to rest before 4 p. m. A warehouseman found himself too weak to do the lifting he had previously done without difficulty. Men in more responsible positions felt that the war must have caused a nervous breakdown. These returned men consulted their own physicians or the physicians of the military hospitals and their symptoms were very much the same—mental or physical tiredness or both. The repeated stresses and strains, and these stresses and strains were of the severest type—their life at stake—caused a mental and physical breakdown of normal intelligent men.

In speaking of the symptoms present in these cases, Drs. W. Sargent and E. Slater in the British Lancet, state that there was the thin fallen face, pallid or sallow complexion. The expression and whole attitude of the body was one of either tension and anxiety or listlessness—lack of interest in everything.

Mentally the patients complained of the usual symptoms of the acute anxiety state: sleeplessness, terrifying bad dreams, a feeling of inner unrest, and a tendency to be startled at the least noise but particularly at the sound of an airplane overhead or and sound resembling it.

What was the treatment given these patients? Rest and sleep, even when sleep had to be produced by drugs, gave gratifying results. The change in appearance in the first few days with adequate rest, sleep and food was striking. In mild cases patients were placed in bed for a few days and given a sleeping tablet. In severe cases continuous sleep was induced for a considerable time.

For those of us whose tenseness or listlessness is due to repeated strains, shocks, stresses of everyday life, a complete mental and physical rest with nourishing food would appear to be good treatment. Later, physical exercise and some reassuring advice from the family physician should bring about a permanent cure.

The tree, about 30 inches thick at the base, pushes its way through a hole which has to be enlarged every few years. A piece of automobile inner tube seals the hole against rain and snow. The cabin, atop Watchung mountain, overlooks Westfield. From one room, Dr. Wood and his wife have transformed it into a rambling six-room bungalow.

STEPS SHORT OF—?

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

I sometimes wonder how many of the boys who were members of Camp Anawanna at Hurleyville during the summers of 1910 to the days just before the World War who recall the tasty meals that Gus Bonesteel as camp chef used to prepare.

The question again arose as I recalled that on Wednesday, July 7, 1915, a group of boys met at the local Y.M.C.A. and from there went to the O. & W. railroad station on Fair street extension to board the train for camp.

The camp that season was in charge of Physical Director L. C. Godfrey assisted by Harry Evory. As I have stated before Gus Bonesteel was the camp chef and he was assisted by Chet Bonesteel. Harry Elmdorf was camp musician.

The camp leaders were Clarence Van Buren, Randall Freer, Earl Beckwith, Clarence Rowland, Charles W. Shultis and Clarence Schoonmaker.

Among the boy campers were Prentiss Gallup, Eric Brown, Elliott Rogers, Harry Carpenter, Wesley Thompson, Charles Beers, Arthur Thompson, Edward Kirchner, Ray Smith, Fred Port, Merwin Garrison, Ray Port, George Delaney, Felix Katz.

Also Sherman Horton, James Hillis, Edward Horton, Lester Finch, George Wood, Ferris Williams, Albert Kullman, Henry Huestis, Tom Rowland, Walter Bonesteel, Roger Martin, Fred Schoonmaker, William Kemble, Jack Kemble, John Demler, William Connelly.

Harry Frey, Alvarez Rose, and John Krom of Saugerties and F. G. and Elmer Randall both of Flushing, L. I.

Although I never attended the annual reunions held at the local Y of the boys who had been in the summer camps during the year that had passed, I recall from what I have heard that the boys enjoyed these annual reunions which afforded them an opportunity to recall pleasant days that were but a memory.

The last I heard of Gus Bonesteel he was still active in "Y" work in an upstate city where he was reported as making good. Many of us recall the days when Gus shone as one of the bright particular stars of the annual "Y" minstrels that were staged in the local association.

Some of those who attended the 1915 summer camp are still active in "Y" work.

It is also interesting to note that among the stars of the silent movies shown in Kingston in 1915 were Mary Pickford, known as America's sweetheart, and Charley Chaplin, the famous comic.

There are many who recall with chuckles the hearty laughs they enjoyed at the showing of the Chaplin movies in the days before the movies became vocal.

Everything But the Squeal

In many respects the shark is more valuable to man than the pig. From the hides of these marine scavengers various grades of durable leather can be made; medicinal and other oils are obtained from the liver and intestines; the head can be converted into glue; the teeth sold to jewelers; fins exported to China; bones ground into fertilizer, and the flesh used as food, shark meat not only being edible, but very palatable.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Army staff: Chow goes modern—Surveying the army ration orders for the boys now doing their hep-hep, a veteran of other days can't help noting how the "nutrition experts have changed their tune. Captain Calorics of 1917-18 now is Major Vitamins.

In both the army and navy today, the laddies are getting something that would have called forth shouts of "sissy" 24 years ago. For example, eight ounces of orange juice a day. That, according to the army men who are supposed to know, is vitamin stuff and not only helps the boys to feel like hammering their chests when they roll out in the cold gray dawn, but promotes wound-healing in case there are any wounds to heal.

The present army rations also are designed if that's the word, to give the ravenous four times as much Vitamin B as government standards rate a "safe minimum," and four times the minimum of Vitamin C (citrus fruits and vegetables). The orange juice provides just one-thirty-second of the latter. The latest development in army nutrition, I'm told, is the business of "spiking" bread with Vitamin B (B-1). More power to the old staff of life.

For Emergency ONLY

The army has four rations: (1) Regular, (2) Field, (3) Combat, (4) Emergency. Combat rations, for use only when a man or group is completely cut off from supply lines.

It's No. 4 that has the boys mumbling in their sleep. It's a chocolate bar, about an inch thick and the size of the palm of your hand. Some of the boys have been nibbling on it and the report is: "Gosh, this stuff tastes like... well, it tastes funny."

I've been snooping and I'm glad to report: It's supposed to taste that way. It used to taste just like a plain chocolate bar, but it didn't take the army that long to discover the soldiers couldn't be trusted with their "emergency rations." They ate them as fast as they could be issued. So now, thanks to a little harmless culinary chicanery, Ration No. 4 "tastes kinda funny," and keeps a whole lot longer.

Back to Old Grid

Policemen and firemen who enlisted or were "selected" into the army are discovering at Camp Dix, N. J., at least that if they had any idea of getting a change of pace for a while, they were counting without that new theory of putting men into jobs where they will count most. Both, after minimum preliminary training, are being hustled right back to the old stand—the policemen to the Provost Marshal's office to become ace M. P.'s, and the firemen to the post fire houses, which will be staffed with a force of 125 men.

First Birthday

Into headquarters here comes a little item that shows just how far behind the times our fighting forces were and some indication at least that we are marching along. It comes from Fort Benning, Ga., and said item is that the 94th anti-tank battalion, first of its kind in the army's history, has just celebrated the one-year anniversary of its birth. It now has 30 officers and 329 enlisted men and is fully equipped with the latest motorized gadgets of modern warfare. This doesn't mean, naturally, that it is the only anti-tank outfit in the army... it's just the first to get one candle on its brand new 37mm guns.

"My Sister and I" by Dirk van der Heide

Even the book publishing business has its remarkable coincidences. A week ago E. N. van Kleeff, Dutch foreign minister, told the story of Holland's last five days in a book called "Juggernaut Over Holland." Now comes a 12-year-old Dutch boy named Dirk van der Heide with his story of the same period, and it is amazing to see how the two agree. Perhaps it is a characteristic of the Dutch mind to think quietly and remember with accuracy. And for the sake of that same accuracy it should be mentioned that Dirk's name is not van der Heide—his publisher dared not use the boy's true name because although his mother was killed when the Germans bombed a Rotterdam hospital, and his Uncle Pieter is in London, his father is still in Holland, where reprisals would be possible.

Dirk and his 9-year-old sister Keetje are in America, and very grateful for it. It seems that the captain of the British boat on which the youngsters were brought to this country found out that Dirk had kept a diary since he was nine, and suggested that he add to it what he could remember of his country's Golgotha, to pass the time at sea. Dirk did, in the curious between-the-ages prose one is likely to get from an intelligent 12-year-old boy. What he wrote makes one of the most effective war stories I have ever read.

Dirk and Keetje lived with their parents in a Rotterdam suburb. They were not rich, but well to do. Dirk's father was a veterinarian, and doctors of animals are well thought of in the Netherlands. On Wednesday, May 8, 1940, Dirk was worrying about a 150-word composition on Erasmus his teacher had assigned him, and his mother was wishing people wouldn't talk so much about war. On Tuesday, May 14, Dirk's mother was dead, his father was lost in the tangled Dutch army somewhere in Holland, and Dirk (with Keetje and Uncle Pieter) were aboard a boat zigzagging toward England.

In between those dates he had seen a Holland-reared German boy parachuted shot to death, had seen dozens of his neighbors die from bombs, had seen people die of fright and shock, had lain under his uncle's motor car while German planes again and again machine-gunned a country road.

His book is the image of himself and I suspect, Dirk is the mirror of Holland.

Today in Washington

Lindbergh's Testimony Proves Startling Eye-Opener and Disagreeable to Those Who Do Not Agree With Him

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1941)

Washington, Jan. 24—The calm, dispassionate way in which Colonel Lindbergh discusses the world situation, argues for isolation, predicts that it doesn't much matter to the United States how the war comes out and that America will not be affected vitally by the result is a phenomenon unpleasant to those who disagree with him, but nevertheless an eye-opener.

For several weeks, President Roosevelt has denounced what he calls the "appeasement" group and unfortunately this has become a term of opprobrium because it assumed a certain sympathy with the Nazi cause. Colonel Lindbergh has been careful to avoid any direct expression of sympathy for the Nazis, but he is recommending a course of action which the administration here feels is directly of aid to the totalitarian cause.

The Lindbergh point of view is most significant. It is not novel, but it runs diametrically opposite to what has been reported by Gallup polls and otherwise to be the predominant sentiment of the nation. There is unhappily a certain intolerance prevalent which declines to argue with men like Lindbergh. The testimony given by the noted flyer, however, forces that debate into the open and lays before the public the arguments of a man who, it is conceded by disinterested observers, is sincere and conscientious about it.

Summed up, Colonel Lindbergh feels that no good can come out of a victory by either side because it would mean a long war. As for America, he believes no invasion is probable because it is believed to be difficult to invade across the ocean. Somehow or another the millions of British people who spend sleepless nights in the underground and the families of thousands who have been killed by indiscriminate bombing would hardly accept the theory that everything will be all right for them in the event of a Hitler victory. The millions of people in conquered France do not find things all right for them now.

But to this sort of argument, Colonel Lindbergh answers that it is none of our business. His premise is that so long as Americans save their own skins and keep their property, all will be well for them. The cool, calculating mind which brushes aside all injustice and says America has no business worrying about what happens abroad because all will be well in the United States anyway is not a newcomer in the ranks of those who debate world issues. In Belgium there were many who said there must be no military understandings in advance between the Belgian and French general staffs because this would be unneutral. In Holland there was meticulous regard for neutrality as the best way to avoid invasion and this was also true in Norway and Denmark. Today those nations are prostrate.

Colonel Lindbergh reiterated what the isolationist group has claimed for twenty years—that America can go it alone, and should go it alone no matter what happens abroad. This has been criticized as a selfish and inhumane course, but it is defended by a large group of which Colonel Lindbergh is a faithful exponent. Is it the traditional habit, however, of the American people to ignore injustice and to regard despotism let loose in the world as likely to draw the line at the seacoasts of Europe? For decades after decade the American people have sympathized with free peoples and have shed their blood in humane causes. Today a considerable body of opinion, included in which are prominent Republicans and Democrats, feels that Fascism and Communism can invade the United States in more ways than by airplane or warship. It is the fear of such an invasion which has aroused Americans to the dangers inherent in the possible victory of the totalitarian states.

Nowhere in Colonel Lindbergh's testimony is there any seeming awareness of the obligations of human brotherhood. The idea that it is more important to live even under a despotism, but to live, is a philosophy that sometimes attracts men to surrender ideals and liberties. There are others, however, who do not think life under a dictatorship is worth living. They are willing to spend their own lives and their fortunes and the lives of their children to prevent despotism from conquering the world. That's why they want Britain to be helped so America will not be confronted with the larger problem.

Colonel Lindbergh has really clarified the issue. He answers the ancient question: "Am I my brother's keeper?" with a flat negative. He would take the name of a Hitler conquest by stopping the war now. He wants a negotiated peace with Hitler. There are many people who think war settles nothing and that peace could come by the right sort of program of reconstruction to be offered by our government to the peoples of Europe, but all this presupposes the elimination of Hitlerism and the return to democracy. There is little chance that American money or effort would underwrite Fascism.

Colonel Lindbergh does not have any responsibility to anyone but himself. The members of Congress and the President are responsible for the safety of the American nation. If Prophet Lindbergh is wrong and Hitler gets the upper hand and threatens the United States, it doesn't matter very much to one individual. If the elected representatives of the American people take a chance and are proved wrong, the consequences are beyond analysis. Hence predictions as to how mildly Hitler will treat Americans and their interests in this hemisphere are largely academic. The responsibility of the government is not academic, but concrete, and that's why the pending lend lease bill, which is really a military measure, for it has the support of the army and navy, will doubtless be passed by Congress even if the powers therein and the defense program itself prove superfluous. ## BABSON ON BUSINESS

ROOSEVELT TESTING HIS POWER

Babson Says Eccles Plan A Setup

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24—The request of Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, that the President's power to further devalue the dollar be scrapped was an administration's trial balloon. Causing considerable comment when first proposed, the real facts behind the controversy have not yet come out.

Congress vs. Roosevelt

To anticipate that the President would voluntarily give up any of his personal powers must have been a belief once more in the "dawn of a new day." To think the Chairman Eccles, a noted "leftist," would of his own initiative bite the hand that gave him his job is likewise too much to believe. Not for nothing is this sudden about face and passive acquiescence on the part of the President to a plan which would shear him of immense and hard-won power.

The boys in the back room who said "It's just a game of politics" were absolutely right. The proposal is too practically obvious; it shows the hand of the master politician too clearly to warrant any other interpretation. It is essential that the President demonstrate as early as possible to the people of this country that he still has the upper hand with Congress. The last thing in the world he wants to do anyway is to further devalue the dollar. But will Congress now take back what was once taken from them? Perhaps Congress, too, will want to play a little politics.

A Sound Proposal

Congress should repeal unsound legislation and regulations. Any act of Congress which will delay the inflation hazard is justified. Mr. Eccles' proposal is basically sound. Originating from the source it did, however, it is bound to be viewed with suspicion. This is particularly true in view of the terrific battle the President put up two years ago to retain his personal power to further devalue the dollar. Regardless of the ultimate fearsome results that the President's existing powers might bring about, Congress may feel it would lose face to now reverse itself.

The President, through Mr. Eccles, has opened the inflation ball to Congress. Our lawmakers have got to carry it for awhile. My guess is that right now they are praying for a fumble. Certainly, there should be removed from our statute books many of the crazy ideas that original New Dealers had for the regimentation of our monetary system. The fact is that the schemes were never needed anyway. Someone in the administration looked up to the fact that the country getting into a financial hotbox. Perhaps all that gold at Fort Knox is beginning to worry Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Morgenthau, and others.

Scared Investors the Real Answer

The man we have in the White House is nobody's fool. He is in there fighting every minute for what he thinks is necessary for the country's welfare. In the first two years of Roosevelt's administration, he set out upon a program designed to benefit the most people. He is still at it, but the changes upon the stage have changed considerably in the past six months. Mr. Roosevelt has always reminded me somewhat of Mr. Edison in the both, in their endeavor to find the answer, embarked upon a process of elimination. In the early days of the New Deal, Mr. Roosevelt felt justified in experimenting. After all, the country is a big one and we could afford it. But now he realizes that he is responsible for a bigger play than that of which he ever dreamed. The whole democratic world is looking to Mr. Roosevelt and our country for leadership.

Compulsory Investing Ahead

If our investors and bankers had any common horse sense, they would recognize this. They would take their funds out of vaults and put them to useful work. Otherwise, we shall see sales campaigns to force individual investors into new forms of government securities. We shall see, too, our so-called "Triple A" bonds down to a reasonable price level, and the second-graders, where real support is needed, will perhaps sell at much higher prices.

Roosevelt has given the bankers every chance and as yet they have not come through. He is going to win the war for England as well as for ourselves. If he cannot get the financial assistance voluntarily you will see every bank, both national and state, under federal control. A word to the wise should be sufficient!

Koreans are indignant over Japan's "Japan-Korea One" Campaign.

Soong Says China May Begin Drives In Three-Year War

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—China, heartened by President Roosevelt's recent announcement of a $100,000,000 Chinese aid program, may take the offensive soon in her three-year-old war with Japan, according to Dr. T. V. Soong, China's former finance minister.

"The Chinese army," he said last night at a dinner of the China Society of America, "is a rugged, redoubtable force of 2,500,000 regulars, supported by vast numbers of guerrillas. Although China has lost over 2,000,000 soldiers in the war, by all accounts she has today an infinitely better organized and more experienced army than at the beginning of the war. "With the Japanese army strung out over a very wide area, demoralized and discouraged by a war that has no end, a determined offensive campaign could have far-reaching results."

Dr. Soong, chairman of the board of directors of the Bank of China, said all hope of a negotiated peace had disappeared when Japan allied herself with the Axis powers.

Without Bridges

It has been authoritatively stated that an alligator two feet in length is at least 15 years of age, while one 12 feet long may be anything from 75 to 150 years old. Alligators are coldblooded creatures, and have an advantage over the human race in that their teeth are perpetually renewed as they wear out.

In the 16 years of the 260th Coast Artillery's existence, it has travelled an estimated 2,500 miles over the highways. The trip in January will provide opportunity to study mechanical maneuvers on roads under varying conditions of weather and terrain.

HOUSE FOREIGN AFFAIRS COMMITTEEMEN GREET LINDBERGH

Hamilton Fish (R-N.Y.), ranking minority member (right), as the famous flier appeared at a hearing on the lend-lease bill. Lindbergh testified that he would prefer a "negotiated peace" in the European war to a victory by either side.

Three Men Accused Of Rockefeller Forgery

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Three men accused of forging the signature of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to three checks totaling $200,005,000 and bandying about other big names to create impressions have been charged with grand larceny in a $7,000 fleeing of two Fifth avenue merchants.

Assistant District Attorney Harris Steinberg said that Moses M. Gans, 57; Jerome Koplik, 39, and Jean Muenzer, 35, all of New York, obtained the money from the two business men in fantastic schemes and told their victims not to become too insistent upon details because "if you ask too much, John D. will get sore and won't let you in on it."

Gans flashed two checks for $100,000,000, each bearing the Rockefeller name, in support of his story that the financier was interested in a deal to withdraw large amounts of liquor from New Jersey warehouses, according to Steinberg. A third check, for $5,000, was described as a "Christmas present" from the philanthropist.

Another deal, Steinberg said, involved the sale of the "Picture Box Corporation," an imaginary concern, and the victims were promised 900 per cent profits on their investments.

Sidney Lisner, a jeweler, lost $5,000 in the schemes and Theodore Osmansky, cigar store owner, $2,000, according to Steinberg.

Aronowitz Points Out Chance for Attorneys

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Attorneys have an "opportunity to do a real service" by refusing to aid those who seek deferment or exemption from the Selective Service Act without "compelling" reason, Major Samuel E. Aronowitz of Albany declared today in an address prepared for delivery before the New York State Bar Association.

"Despite the general conception," he said, "compulsory military service is not un-American and is not opposed to American fundamentals. Compulsory service is in keeping with the ideals of true democracy. Service by all, with no weight to influence, prestige or position, is the keystone of our American philosophy of government. So long as that doctrine is observed, we need have no fears for our future."

Magic Spring

By ALLEN EPPES

YESTERDAY: David Wiley wants three things very much. He wants to marry Polly Jenkins. He wants to restore his little cousin Peter to health. And he wants to rehabilitate "Freddie's Polly," which is the old inn and mineral spring left him by his Aunt Julia. Now the visit of Dr. Warren McNeill to Ardendale gives him hope for the latter at the same time Margo Powers seems about to interfere in his romance with Polly. The four are on a picnic at the inn.

Chapter 21

Margo's Puzzle

"I DON'T think Warren's the sort of man to let his family go hungry," said Polly. "Mind getting those four cups out of the basket I brought? They're odds and ends, but good enough for picnics."

Margo found the cups. She was placing them on a board near the oven when the two men joined them.

"Boy, does that coffee smell good!" Warren said.

"Ready for me to broil the hot dogs?" David asked.

"Yes," said Polly. "And don't waste any time. I feel as though I could eat six of them myself."

"And where," Warren asked, looking at Polly's small form, "would you put them?"

"Maybe I've got a hollow leg!" said Polly.

Soon the meal was in full swing. The sun disappeared. An afterglow filled the sky. An indescribable peace settled over the scene.

Warren got out his cigarettes. He passed them around.

Soon they were all smoking, relaxed about the remains of the picnic supper.

"Get your banjo, David," said Polly.

"Yes, do," Warren urged. "Let's do some singing. I haven't done any in ages."

"Do you know any negro spirituals?" David asked.

"I used to. Let's see! Oh, how about the one about 'standing in the need of prayer'?"

"It's a favorite of mine," said David.

"Mine, too," said Polly. "Then let's see if we can remember 'Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party'—You know that one, don't you, Margo?"

"I think so," Margo answered.

"I have a faint recollection of singing it in public school."

"Of course!" said Polly. "We had it once when we gave an entertainment."

David got up. "Swells!" he said. "We'll sing ourselves back into the good old horse and buggy days."

"Which," said Warren with a touch of wistfulness, "weren't bad days, by any means. More intimacy and friendliness then—and not so much mechanism. People got together and did things—danced, sang, played games, contributed bits of talent; and now—well, all people do now is sit around with their mouths open listening to a lot of asinine that comes over the air. They don't even read any more. Just sit and sit—and never use their brains or their hands."

"You sound," said Margo, "as though you had lived your life during those horse and buggy days."

"No," said Warren. "I came along a little too late for them. But just the same, sometimes wish that I had lived then."

"That's another thing we agree on, Warren," said David. "I've started for his car. 'I'll get the banjo, and we'll pretend we're back when ladies wore rats in their hair, and men's shoes had buttons.'"

An hour passed, two hours, three.

The four young people sat underneath the old apple tree and sang—tried this old song, that old one. Then they did some things that were more modern.

"No use," said David; "they just don't go with a banjo."

"No," said Warren. "They need silly-looking men tooting crazy-looking horns with plug hats stuck on them. A banjo was meant for songs that have feeling—meaning—sentiment."

Indecision

MARGO was oddly quiet.

She had been watching Warren closely, watching David the same way. Two such handsome men, and with such old-fashioned ideas. To hear them talk, you'd think the modern world had nothing at all to offer. Both of them apparently perfectly content to go on living in a town like Ardendale. And Warren was waiting for her to make up her mind about marrying him; waiting, while she hesitated, wondering, and not a little worried. Warren McNeill, David Wiley.

"Let's sing the one about all God's chillun having shoes," said Polly. "and then we'd better clear up this mess and go home."

David began to strum the banjo once more.

His voice, Warren's and Polly's blended nicely. Margo did not join. She said she didn't know the words.

"Then hum," said Warren.

"I'm an awful hummer," said Margo.

Warren reached over and took one of Margo's hands.

"Isn't this a lot nicer than the Riviera?" he said.

"No," said Margo. "I don't think so."

"I do," said Warren. And he released the hand he was holding.

Polly sprang to her feet. She busied herself gathering up the soiled dishes. The others helped her. Then when David had poured water on the fire, they went back to the cars.

Soon they were headed for Ardendale.

David drove slowly, but Margo, at the wheel of her yellow roadster, did not. She and Warren sped on ahead.

"Acts as though she were going to a fire," David said.

Polly did not answer. But presently she said: "She's in love with you. You know that, don't you?"

"What in heck are you talking about?" David said, startled.

"You and Margo. She's in love with you. That's easy enough to see."

"Listen, Polly—don't talk nonsense," said David. "Margo's going to marry Warren."

"What makes you so sure?"

"I know Warren. He'll win her sooner or later."

"Not if Margo won't say yes. He can't carry her off by the hair of the head."

"Maybe he ought to," said David. "Margo's beautiful, she's charming, and she's just not all there. I mean, she seems to miss so many things that are worthwhile. Like singing those old songs—not really feeling what's back of them."

"She's confused," said Polly. "She's fond of Warren, but she can't make up her mind—because of you."

"Is that woman's intuition?" said David. "Margo's the sort of girl who likes men—and—"

"And she likes you especially," said Polly. She waited a moment, and then went on: "I've done a lot of thinking while I was in that ticket booth, David—and I realize how much a girl like Margo could do for you and Peter."

"You're talking crazier and crazier," said David. "But go on—get it out of your system."

"Margo has money, and she'll have more when her father dies," said Polly. "She could supply the necessary means for putting the inn in condition—send Peter to the finest of specialists. There's no limit to what she could do. While I—"

"Yes, while you?"

"Oh, David, don't you see what I'm trying to get at?" Polly waited.

"No. It looks to me like you're trying to find a polite way of showing me the gate; or trying to push me down Margo Powers' throat."

"You're hopeless!" said Polly. "I'd say you were the one who's hopeless," David retorted. "Are you honestly trying to ditch me—trying to marry me off to Margo?"

Quarrel

"CERTAINLY not. I'm only trying to make you see that it will mean a lot more to you to marry her, than me."

"I get it," said David. "Trying to be a martyr."

"Not!"

"Trying to be the self-sacrificing little heroine of our love story," David went on. "If you don't want to marry me, Polly, why don't you come right out and say so?"

"It's not that, David. It's only that—"

"Maybe you're falling for Warren," David rushed on. "I've seen how you hang breathlessly on his every word—"

"David!"

"Don't think I'm jealous," David said. "I'm not. I'd hate to lose you, but darned if I'd put too much of a fight, if Warren was the other man. I like him. He's a swell fellow."

"So you'd just calmly sit by and let me walk off with Warren!" said Polly. "Is that it?"

"Of course not, Polly! I only meant—"

"Oh, it doesn't matter," said Polly. "Let's not quarrel, like a couple of children. Can't you drive a little faster?"

"I can drive a lot faster," said David. "If you're bored."

"Then do," said Polly. "I've got to get home and fix Aunt Susan's hot water bottle."

"You and your everlasting hot water bottles!" said David angrily. Polly looked at him. She started to make a cutting retort, but changed her mind.

"Good night, David," Polly said at her gate. "Thanks for a grand time."

"Well, you needn't be sarcastic," said David.

"I wasn't," said Polly. And then: "My, you are touchy here of late."

"And why shouldn't I be. I'd like to know!" snapped David. "What with you talking a lot of nonsense about another girl being in love with me, and refusing to make up your mind about going through with our marriage?"

"I'm not going through with our marriage," said Polly. "until I'm sure you know just what you want."

"I've known I wanted you ever since we were kids."

"But that was before Margo got back."

"Margo—Margo—Margo!" David said. "I'm sick of hearing you say the name. Good night. He got back into his car. 'If it'll make you any happier, I'll find out for sure just how Margo feels about me.'"

"I wish you would!" Polly said.

David released the clutch. He drove off without looking back. When he reached the Wiley cottage he went in as quietly as possible. But Peter heard him.

"That you, Cousin David?" he called out. And David detected excitement in the boy's voice.

"Yes, Peter. I thought you were asleep."

"Cousin David, I walked—I walked."

Woman Named Sheriff
For the first time in its history, Montgomeryshire, England has chosen a woman as sheriff of the county. She is Mrs. C. S. Way. A woman sheriff is a novelty in Great Britain, but not a woman admiral. Mrs. Kate Clarke, the new mayor of Chester, is Admiral of the Dee. The offices go together. The first British woman to become an admiral was Mrs. Foster-Welch, mayor of Southampton, in 1928.

Ten Commandments of Health

1. Help yourself to health. Form habits that will fight for you, not against you.
2. Do not expect to have good health without effort. Health must be earned.
3. Adopt the policy that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.
4. Make food your servant, not your master. Eat for strength.
5. Breathe deeply, for air is life's first requisite and nature's best tonic.
6. Exercise for health, not for strength. Exercise sends clean blood to the brain.
7. Seek sunshine, for sunshine and discolor are always enemies.
8. Water—use plentifully daily; warm for cleanliness, cold for tonic.
9. Keep a clear conscience, for true rest is mental as well as physical.
10. Work playfully, read much, and play often. Play keeps old age at bay.

Neither Sambo or Rastus could tell time. But Sambo wore a nice big Ingersoll on a chain with an air of superiority.

Rastus—What time am it?

Sambo hesitated and then extended the timepiece, saying: "Sambo—Dar she am."

Rastus looked at it carefully and said:

Rastus—Darned if she ain't.

The old scissors grinder, I can't make him out.

There ain't much of brain in his skull.

The guy must be daffy, he says, "There's no doubt that when business is good, things are dull."

Did you know that, in our elections...

No loser has ever carried 12 states?

It is possible to be elected by carrying just 12 states?

It is possible to be elected even though only 25% of the popular vote is received.

You have to draw the line somewhere:

...a farmer's wife hurrying from milking the cows to the kitchen, from the kitchen to the churn, from the churn to the woodshed, and back to the kitchen stove, was asked if she wanted to vote.

"No, I certainly do not. If there's one little thing that the men-folks can do alone, for goodness' sake let 'em do it."

More From a Merchant

While he has been our groceryman for many, many years.

We haven't merely talked on foods, he shared our griefs and fears.

Between advice on things in cans, he'd ask about our health;

From fruits and bacon, we'd discuss all things, from war to wealth.

And, though great sorrows came to him, I never saw him frown;

As he befriended rich and poor, from every part of town.

I've often said: "You help this world with your kind cheerful way!"

And, oh, I'm glad I did tell him, they buried him today.

—Lyla Myer.

Thoughtfulness for others is a great gift:

An Irishman carrying a large sack of potatoes along a lonely road was overtaken by a man driving a horse and cart.

The driver offered Pat a lift which he gladly accepted, but still kept the sack of potatoes on his back. The driver told him to put them down in the cart.

Pat—Sure, I'm thankful for the lift ye give me, but I don't want ye to be burdened with the taters as well.

Gunmen Take Dutchess Officer's Car From Him

Wappingers Falls, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—Three gunmen outwitted a lone patrolman and stole his patrol car early today after he took two of them to the village police station for questioning.

At 3 a. m. Patrolman Joe Costa took a look at two men staring at the First National and Wappingers Falls Savings Banks. He walked them into the police station but as he started to handcuff them, one slipped a gun out of a sleeve. The second held Costa and a third man walked in and hit the policeman over the head with the butt of his gun.

The gunmen locked Costa in a lavatory and drove off in a sedan and the patrol car. The patrol car was found abandoned in Peekskill, N. Y.

Esopus Club Woman Receives Medal for Outstanding Service

MRS. A. LOREN LE FEVRE
Mrs. A. Loren Le Fevre of Esopus was honored by the Woman's Club of Queens Village, Inc., at its recent meeting. The president of the club, Mrs. Edward F. Reuter, presented Mrs. Le Fevre with a bronze medal designed to perpetuate and commemorate outstanding pioneer women. This is in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which has formed a Golden Jubilee Committee to honor pioneer women. The committee selected and issued the medals to clubs to be presented to the two outstanding charter members who have given the most service to their club.

Eighteen years ago Mrs. Le Fevre organized the Woman's Club of Queens Village and of which she is now honorary president. She also organized the Junior League of the club. Her other club affiliations have been an appointed office on the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs and an elective office on the Long Island Federation. She also organized the Past Presidents' Association.

Mrs. Le Fevre was greatly responsible for the naming of Queens Village. This community, formerly known as Queens, now has a population of over 55,000. It is located in the Borough of Queens of Greater New York city and when it became necessary some years ago to change its name, Mrs. Le Fevre, who was active in civic work, was the only woman on the committee. When trying to decide upon a name, the men said, "Let's leave it to the women" and Mrs. Le Fevre replied, "Why not add Village to Queens?"

Eight years ago Mrs. Le Fevre moved to Esopus, but her activities have not ceased. There she organized another women's club—the Woman's Club of Southern Ulster County. She has also been active in and is now an officer of the Public Nursing Center and Clinic of Ulster county.

The figure on the medal is that of a pioneer woman in a long sure stride, a Bible clasped in one hand and a bundle thrown over her other arm. Her clear eyes shine out from under a sunbonnet, her chin is up. Her eager son strides at her side, his hand clasped in hers as the stirring panorama of a new life unfolds before them.

Recital of Oberammergau To Be Given Tomorrow

The people of Kingston will be given an opportunity to travel with Augustus E. Califano, noted world traveler and lecturer, on Saturday evening, at 8:15 o'clock, at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium when he will take them on a realistic pilgrimage in his eloquent recital of "The Passion Play of Oberammergau."

His recital will be supplemented with many superbly colored and distinctive lantern views which are exclusive and official scenes from the latest production of the Passion Play.

Mr. Califano has lived in Oberammergau, has witnessed the Passion Play and is personally acquainted with its leading performers. He was a member of the reception committee which in 1923 conducted an exhibit of the Oberammergau players in this country. The above mentioned recital is being sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. Couples' Club and Trinity Lutheran Men's Club, and tickets may be obtained from the members of either of these clubs or Styles jewelry store, 288 Fair street.

Y. W. Women's Club Presents "Patsy"

Members of the Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. turned to the stage and comedy Thursday afternoon to help swell the welfare fund of the club. This fund enables the group to contribute over 100 dresses each year to the Mayor's Christmas Cheer Committee as well as carry on its numerous other welfare activities.

The medium chosen for Thursday's aid to the fund was the comedy, "Patsy," which was presented under the direction of Mrs. S. Maxwell Taylor. The play, with its characters well cast, kept the audience in laughter until the last curtain call.

Patsy, the Irish maid, played by Mrs. Burton Haver, provided the comedy with her awkward antics and unhappy faculty of always getting into trouble. The action was breezy throughout the play. It centered around Miss Lane, played by Mrs. Thomas W. Reynolds, in whose home the scene was laid and Miss Nita Farrell, her niece, played by Mrs. Kenneth Le Fevre, whose wedding was in preparation. Others in the play who were visitors to the Lane household were Mrs. John Reis, Mrs. Daniel Van Wagenen and Mrs. Addison Schultz.

Used for the first time were the new tan side drops and blue curtain. Although still incomplete, the curtain was usable and when finished will be a great addition to future Y. W. plays.

Building Increase In City Compared

Local Activity Shows Gain
of .47% over 1939

New York, Jan. 23 (Special).—Although Kingston did not have as marked an increase in building activity in 1940 as many other cities, it showed, nevertheless, a gain of .47 per cent over the previous year, according to statistics gathered from 354 cities by the Commercial and Financial Chronicle here.

Building permits issued in Kingston in 1940 totaled $467,666 as compared with $465,499 in 1939. These figures are exclusive of engineering construction and public works.

The improvement for the entire nation was 11.76 per cent. The gain in construction in cities of the Middle Atlantic states amounted to 18.68 per cent. The greatest sectional increase was in the Pacific states, with 19.11 per cent.

The Chronicle points out that although the building tendency has been upward for several years, actual construction is still subnormal. The lag has been severe and protracted and the population has been increasing, adding to the problem. Builders, it adds, have been loathe to undertake residential building in large centers, owing to the tax burden and the migration of people toward the suburbs.

Five Persons Leave St. Louis Hospitals

St. Louis, Jan. 24 (AP).—Five of the 12 persons injured in the crash of the Transcontinental & Western air sky-scraper were released from hospitals today and the other seven were reported in fair condition.

Two men were killed: Capt. P. T. W. Scott, pilot of Little Neck, N. Y., and John Frank Mott, T. W. A. mechanic of Kansas City.

Frank Caldwell, chief of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said his investigation of yesterday's pre-dawn crash would continue 10 days. Then an inquiry will be conducted here in an attempt to fix the cause.

Earl Bierman, radio operator in the control tower at Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport, said "something apparently went wrong because the pilot pulled the plane into what looked like an S-turn and it disappeared behind some trees. Then there was a 'flash' as it tore through telephone wires almost at the edge of the landing field."

After a preliminary survey, John A. Collins of Kansas City, superintendent of operations for T. W. A., said the plane's tail might have hit first.

GRANGE NEWS

Ulster Park, Jan. 24.—The service and hospitality committee of which Mrs. William Hendriks is chairman, met at the home of Mrs. Reuben Gullian on Monday evening. Several activities were discussed and the immediate plans comprise a Valentine party in the hall on February 14; garden party in the hall on March 21, and the celebration of the 38th anniversary of the organization of the Grange during the first week of April. This will be a banquet for the members of the Grange. Fuller details will be announced later. A committee was appointed to select time and place.

On Friday evening of this week the newly formed degree team of Ulster Grange will confer the third and fourth degrees on a large class of new members of Hurley Grange at Hurley.

At the next meeting of Ulster Grange on February 5, the third and fourth degrees will be given to a class of seven candidates of Ulster Grange.

GOOD— TASTE TODAY

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

INJUSTICE DONE TO TIMID DAUGHTER BY SCHOOLGIRL FRIENDS BEST FORGOTTEN, MOTHER IS ADVISED

Open Resentment or Rebuke
Would Not Win Sympathy for Child, Is Emily Post's
Opinion

It is of course the first impulse of devoted parents to protect their children and to resent any unfairness shown them by the unthinking or unknowing. But in the following situation it would be doing the daughter a real injustice to encourage her mother to turn an incident into a situation. This mother's letter says:

"Is there something that I, as mother of a timid daughter, could do for her in this case? Two of her school friends asked to give a party with my daughter here at our house. They were to help with the games and to serve the refreshments. They did neither but instead sat around in corners most of the evening with their boy friends. It was all very unkind and my daughter cried bitterly after the evening was over. But she won't say anything to either of these girls, and only tells me that she has cried out her bitterness and would rather forget it. I think the girls should be rebuked and not allowed to go on doing things like this, and I am wondering what I could do."

At the time, you could have asked them to help Mary bring in the ice cream or to help her with whatever it was, but now that it is over, there is nothing to do except take a lesson from it. It is easy to understand your resentment against their selfish ill manners, but your daughter is very wise in her determination to forget the unhappy incident. The less she says about it, the more likely is the unfairness of the co-hostesses to be resented by those who were there that night and saw things for themselves. All young people resent unfairness—except when those who have been unfairly treated complain too much. If you want to keep the sympathy of everyone inclined toward your daughter, do not say a word more! But don't repeat this plan for any other future party!

A Wedding Invitation With a Slight Change

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter is being married here at home and as the invitations should carry some address, we don't know what to use. We have no street number and our house does not boast a name. We live here on the campus of the X college at which my husband teaches. Will you please tell me what to do.

Answer: The invitation will follow along as usual until the very ending, which would have to be this:

At their residence on the X . . . Campus
Greentree, Maine

The Use of Nut Cups

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me if it is appropriate to use nut cups at dinner, or whether they are used only for luncheon, or perhaps are not in good taste ever. I have had some sterling silver nut cups given to me for a present and naturally want to make use of them if possible.

Answer: Little individual silver bowls—which I suppose is what you mean by cups, or perhaps bigger ones to put between each two bowls—are especially appropriate for dinner parties and of course luncheon parties too! According to correct table service, however, they are supposed to be taken away when the table is cleared and crumbed for dessert.

(Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Twenty oft-repeated questions about special problems of table service and setting are answered in Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Table Setting," which you may have by sending ten cents. Address Emily Post, care of Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

U. S. Civil Service Jobs
Offer Chances for Many

Uncle Sam Needs New Workers

Have you been thinking about the United States Civil Service, wondering if there's a spot you can fill, an opportunity for you?

There may be, for Uncle Sam needs clerks, typists, nurses, doctors, border patrolmen, machinists, guards and many others to carry on his work all over the country.

What experience do you need? None, if you become a fingerprint classifier—only a high-school education. On the other hand, an electric mechanic must have four years of experience in his trade.

There are jobs ranging from the unskilled (postal clerks, janitors) to the highly skilled (chemists, tool designers) with salaries ranging accordingly.

A junior typist gets $1,260, a rural letter carrier about $1,800, a physicist $3,800 a year. You need no political "pull," for Civil Service isn't politically controlled. You take a test and the best men—and women—win.

How to apply for a job, what rules you must follow are explained in our new 32-page booklet. Lists many U. S. Civil Service positions, stating requirements and salaries. Explains different types of examinations and how to apply.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of GETTING A JOB WITH THE U. S. GOVERNMENT to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Civic Education Head

Commissioner of Education Ernest E. Cole today announced the appointment of Claude L. Kulp, superintendent of schools at Ithaca, as state director of civic education for national defense for out-of-school youth. To enable Mr. Kulp to accept this call to direct this special part of the state program of citizenship training, the Ithaca board of education has granted him a leave of absence from February 1 to June 30, 1941. The Division of Civic Education for National Defense for Out-of-School Youth was created by the Regents last November for the purpose of extending to out-of-school youth educational services and the opportunity to participate in American democracy, to develop personal morale, understanding of our national heritage, pride in citizenship and a desire to build a better community. In addition to study and discussion of American democracy, the program aims to provide participation in its privileges by furnishing satisfying experiences in self-government, self-expression and self-development.

Four-H club girls from 10 counties in the Hudson Valley will show various ways to use New York state apples at a meeting of fruit growers in Kingston, January 29 to 31.

Judge Hasbrouck Heads Red Cross

Other Officers Are Named
at Annual Session

The re-election of Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck to the office of chairman of the Ulster County Chapter, American Red Cross, and the hearing of annual reports submitted by the secretary and treasurer of the organization featured the annual meeting of the local Red Cross chapter held Thursday afternoon at the court house.

Serving with Judge Hasbrouck on the official board of the organization are: Senator Charles W. Walton, first vice-chairman; Harry duBois Frey, second vice-chairman; Allan L. Hanstein, third vice-chairman; Robert C. Murray, treasurer, and Mrs. Charlotte W. Tappan, secretary.

Judge Hasbrouck presided at the meeting, opening with a few remarks concerning the urgent need for Red Cross activity in the world today. The report of the secretary evidenced a greater amount of work accomplished during the year 1940, and a substantial bank balance and listing of expenditures were cited in the treasurer's report.

The work of Dr. H. W. Keator, chairman of the First Aid committee, the accomplishments of the Woodstock Chapter, and the work of the committee in charge of surgical dressings, were cited as excellent. In the matter of surgical dressings it was stated that 20,000 dressings had been shipped to Europe and that the committee would now undertake an order of surgical dressings for the United States Army.

Evangelists Show Works Of Art at Local Church

H. Willard Ortlip, portrait painter and muralist, well known in New York art circles, is giving an exhibition of some of his paintings at the Alliance Church, corner Franklin and Pine streets.

Aimee E. Ortlip, his wife, best known as a still-life landscape painter, is also represented. The couple have given frequent joint shows in New York city. Mr. Ortlip has exhibited regularly with the Salmagundi Club of 47 Fifth Avenue and the Allied Artists of America, of which he is a member.

Perhaps the outstanding picture in this group is the striking portrayal of an Italian, "Dynamite Mike," about to apply the stick of explosive on which he operates with his knife. There is a charming postcard head of a wistful type "Norwegian Girl," that has won recognition in New Jersey shows.

Aimee Ortlip's "March Winds," which received a medal at Montclair Museum represents the view of New York and the harbor from the cliff outlook where the Ortlips made their home, prior to their recent adventure in full-time evangelistic work. "Majolica," also by Mrs. Ortlip, has a similar background.

A series of full-color prints from the "Christian Herald" is also shown.

The exhibit is open to the public Friday and Saturday from 2 to 5 p. m., also Friday, 6:30 to 7:45 o'clock.

Plenty of Snow Reported for State Meet in Rosendale Sunday

Six Inches Already Packed Upon Hill: Drifts in Reserve

Very Little Chance of Meet Being Called Off; Many Outstanding Stars Will Perform

Despite a few days of mild weather in this vicinity conditions at Rosendale for the Telemark Club's New York Ski Jumping Championships on Sunday are very good, according to word from Walter Williams today.

Williams said this morning that there was plenty of snow on the hills for a good base. "On the average," he said, "there is about six inches of snow on the landing hill and plenty of it in reserve in case of rain between now and Sunday." There is sufficient snow scraped together in the form of a horse-shoe on the out-run.

Although a few athletes will be arriving this evening from distant places, the majority of the skiers will come into Rosendale Saturday. Williams also said this morning that the contestants dine together Sunday evening at the Williams Lake Hotel beginning at 6 o'clock. Lunches will be served for them at various hotels during Sunday afternoon. It is the hope of the Williams Lake officials that all of the athletes will be able to dine together.

Stars at 2 P. M.

With a host of expert ski contestants ready for the championships, spectators are assured of seeing one of the best contested meets in several years. Well-known skiers from all sections of the east are included. Action will begin at 2 o'clock.

An interesting contender to watch Sunday will be Kyrie Tokle, brother of the young star, Torger Tokle. Kyrie is entered in the B Class.

A man to follow in the same class will be Eric Lindroth of the Gardner, Mass., Outing Club. Lindroth won the trophy tournament in Rosendale last February and will be seeking to retain it. One of the originators of the Hudson Valley Ski Club of Poughkeepsie, Arnold Berge of Hyde Park, also is listed in Class B activities. Berge, Lindroth and Tokle, besides a host of other stalwarts, are expected to give the snow spectators plenty of thrills throughout the afternoon.

A former Olympian, Warren Chivers, a Dartmouth star and former National Combined Champion, is another favorite. Chivers, Merrill Barber of Brattleboro, Vt., and Harold Sorenson, former Olympian of the Norfolk, Conn. Winter Sports Association, are expected to pace most of the other contestants.

With 60 entries already received and a possibility that others may enter the tournament, it is a rather difficult job to pick out individual athletes who will be in a place to come through with a victory Sunday. However, there are two young acers from Lake Placid who are sure of being tough until the finish. They are Jay Hand and Art Devlin, who ended up with a first and second in last Sunday's meet at Bear Mountain.

Tom Stidham Will Coach Marquette

Ex-Oklahoma Mentor to Have Some Aides

Norman, Okla., Jan. 24 (AP)—Big Tom Stidham, who coached Oklahoma University to a Big Six championship, two second places and one third in four years, is transferring to Marquette University and may take his entire staff along.

Marquette gave Stidham authority to name all of his assistants.

Stan Williamson, Oklahoma line coach who has applied for the head football job at Colorado University, said he hopes to go with Stidham.

"It looks as if there's going to be a clean slate," commented W. B. Bizzell, university president.

Terms of Stidham's Marquette contract were not disclosed. He got $7,500 a year here. He will succeed John L. Driscoll, resigned, at the Milwaukee school.

DUSO League Teams to End First Half Action Tonight

Three-Way Tie for Second to Be Settled; Maroon Cagers Idle; Is Brown Close to Sagendorf

With Middletown High safely holding the first half honors of the DUSO Basketball League the final week of competition in the initial half will take place this evening on three different courts. Kingston will be idle.

The centered attraction tonight will be around Bob Brown of Port Jervis who will be trying desperately to overtake Rod Sagendorf's position as the league's highest scorer. Sagendorf has scored 48 in his six games while Brown has collected 39. Incidentally, Port meets Monticello, which will be far from a push-over.

Except for this situation the games tonight offer very little of interest. At the present there is a three-way tie for second place with Monticello, Newburgh and Port Jervis knotted with three wins and two losses. Middletown will meet Newburgh. Monticello travels to Port, and Liberty will entertain Ellenville. Both Liberty and Ellenville will be fighting to keep out of the cellar.

Danning Rejects Contract

After receiving no disputes from the first 12 players the New York Giants said today that the contract of Harry Danning had been received but not signed. A letter came with the contract saying that the catcher was going to drive from Los Angeles to Miami. No trouble is expected.

Bees Sign West

The Boston Bees signed Max West, slugging outfielder and part-time first baseman to a contract Thursday. West played a number of games last year at first base when the regular first sacker, Buddy Hassett, was injured.

Yanks Sign Five

Five more New York Yankees have agreed to terms, Ed Barrow has announced. Tom Holmes, Phil Rizzuto, young infield star from Kansas City; Tommy Henrich, George Barley and Allen Gettel have sent in the signed contracts.

Boudreau Happy, But Is Planning On Future Years

Young Indian Infielder Is Proud of 1st Year in Majors but Sees Later Life Too

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP)—Lou Boudreau, who knows how to keep his eye on the ball, also has it on the future.

The picture of a sensational 23-year-old baseball star talking about the future may seem unusual. But then, Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians is an unusual player.

He is a smart man—one who refuses to let all the praises and gifts that came to him this winter obscure his vision of that day when his diamond starring years are over.

The record book indicates Lou hasn't anything to worry about for a long time. Last season, his first full one in the majors, he played in all 155 of Cleveland's games, batting a smart .295, driving in 101 runs, scoring 97 runs and leading American League shortstops afield with a .968 average based on only 24 errors in 755 chances. He was acclaimed the rookie of the year.

But those records, while he's pardonably proud of them, won't take care of him after he's hung up his glove for good—and he says "No one knows that any better than I."

"I love baseball and it's been grand to me," he says quietly. "But no player ever knows when some injury suddenly might end his playing days just when he's going his best. I'm proud of my averages, but I'm just as proud, or perhaps a little more so, of that bachelor of science degree I got at Illinois last year."

He wants to coach baseball at some college when his playing days are over and believes that degree—"Something no one can take from me"—won't hurt his chances of landing such a job.

With his wife and small daughter Boudreau lives in a modest bungalow 25 miles south of Chicago's loop.

Alice Marble Is Finally Trowned

Loss Is 1st in Three Years for Pretty Blonde

Boston, Jan. 24 (AP)—For the first time in almost three years, Alice Marble felt the sting of defeat today as she and her professional tennis colleagues moved out to continue their nation-wide tour.

While playing her tenth professional engagement with Mary Hardwick before a 5,121 crowd at the Boston Garden last night, Miss Marble was out-studied by the British girl, who gained a hard-earned 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 victory. As an amateur, Miss Marble gained seven straight wins over Miss Hardwick.

Miss Marble's last previous setback was under the racket of Helen Jacobs in the 1938 Wimbledon championships. From then on she won every singles match, including the finals in the last three national championships.

Wolves Sign Five

Five more New York Yankees have agreed to terms, Ed Barrow has announced. Tom Holmes, Phil Rizzuto, young infield star from Kansas City; Tommy Henrich, George Barley and Allen Gettel have sent in the signed contracts.

WANTED

Buick to Offer Four New Models

Lower in Price, Greater Performance, Economy

Returning today from a business session of the Buick zone in New York, Bob Gross of the Kingston Buick Company, Inc., announced that this division of General Motors Corporation will shortly introduce four new automobiles in a lower price bracket as an addition to the present Series 40 Special Buick line.

Mr. Gross said he inspected the new cars and heard factory and zone officials outline aggressive sales plans for the next 60 days covering the announcement of these new models and the early spring campaign on these and Buick's six other lines.

"While details of the new cars will not be available until next week, I can say they are the answer to the demand of a mighty big cross section of the country for a Buick built in a more compact size but with all of the big car engineering and design qualities which characterize the larger Buicks," Mr. Gross said.

"The cars have a shorter wheelbase and shorter over-all length and new bodies but they are otherwise identical with the Series 40 Buicks and for that reason are being introduced as an addition to the series 40 rather than a new line. They will be lower in price and have greater performance and economy than the present Series 40 line," Mr. Gross added. They will be formally announced and placed on display February 1.

Financial and Commercial

Concerned With Price Trends In Some Commodities

Carloadings for the week ended January 18 lost, but two other business indices showed gains. Loadings for the week were 700,440 cars, a decline of 11,235 from the preceding week, but still ahead of last year by 8.4 per cent. Barron's index of the physical volume of business for the week moved ahead half a point, to 97, from 96.5 the previous week. Department store sales for the week throughout the nation were nine per cent above the 1940 week.

The national defense authorities are expressing concern over price trends in a number of basic commodities. Leon Henderson, defense commissioner in charge of price stabilization, told representatives of 46 lumber trade associations that the price of lumber must come down still further or he will recommend to the President that the industry be "drafted," forcing it to sell at prices fixed by the government.

President Curtice of Buick sees no reason to expect curtailment of auto making before end of 1941 model year, but said that beyond the end of the 1941 season "only a rash man would venture predictions."

Activity in over-the-counter sale of securities continues. Yesterday 25,461 shares of United Fruit Co. was readily distributed in this manner at $68 a share. Understood to have represented British holdings.

Stocks closed mixed Thursday. The Dow-Jones industrial average was off 0.31 to 128.34; rails gained .20, to close at 29.48 and utilities were up .09, to 20.27. There was further interest in rail equities and a number of carrier stocks appeared again in the most active list. Volume all transactions was 470,000 shares.

Commodities again moved upward, the index gaining .12 point. Cotton futures were one to nine points higher. Wheat was improved and closed 1/4 to 1/2 cent higher. China was reported inquiring for U. S. flour, perhaps 400,000 barrels—freight space for about half that amount is available at present.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

Help the Children Plan a Garden

But do they want one, you say?

Just ask them! Watch their eyes light up at the thought of a garden of their very own—where they can dig to their heart's content; where they can pick flowers if they feel so inclined; where they can grab a snack in the form of a nice crisp fresh radish or a tomato, which they have grown by their own efforts (it makes it taste better, and there will be no worrying about whether Willie or Alice is getting enough fresh vegetables).

Let them make their own choice as to what they will plant and how they will arrange it. But if you are asked for advice, suppose you use your influence toward a choice of such easy material as marigolds, nasturtiums (but here you will have to caution the small gardener that if he wants nasturtiums it will have to be at the price of eternal vigilance for aphids, with prompt action with the spray gun should they appear), cornflowers, and in the vegetable division, lettuce, radishes, perhaps some of the small red and yellow pear-shaped tomatoes—in other words, crop that won't result in disappointment for the young gardening enthusiast.

At first enthusiasm will run so high that the child will want to undertake too large a garden. Don't let him make this mistake. Insist on a small area which can be well tended with only a very small outlay of time and thus will not become a burden to him, but a continued source of pleasure and pride.

After the momentous question of what to plant is decided and seed and plants are provided, show the small gardener how to properly prepare the seed bed, how to incorporate a complete balanced plant food, and the proper way to seed and transplant.

After the crops are growing, explain how necessary it is to keep the surfaces cultivated, why weeds are injurious, the necessity for feeding the growing plants. Show him the correct method of application of plant food, and encourage him to feed half of the area and leave the other half unseeded, so that he can see with his own eyes that plants must be properly nourished for best results—that it is not difficult or costly to accomplish this with the aid of modern science.

To heighten the child's pleasure from a garden, tell him about some of the old flower games we used to play in our grandmothers' gardens. Suggest a few of the plants that will give him the necessary material. Here are some of the plants that will furnish play material and the use to which they are put:

Have a clump of pansies or violets. If the petals are pulled away, the stems and pistil look like "the old man with his feet in the bathtub." The spur of the flower forms the bath. The stems form the blanket around the old man's shoulders.

If two violets are hooked together by their spurs they may be used in wishing games. When the stems are pulled, one of them will break. The player holding the unbroken violet is the winner.

Hollyhocks: Who does not remember the life-size dolls made from hollyhock blooms?

Snappers: If you squeeze the flower sideways between your thumb and finger, you will get the effect of a dragon opening and closing its mouth.

A clump of showy stonewort (Sedum spectabile) will give hours of fun. If the leaf is sucked until the upper and lower epidermis are separated, it can be pulled in and out like the skin of a frog's throat.

Did you ever "slip" willow bark in the spring and make whistles? A small willow tree in the child's garden will provide a great deal of fun (though when proficiency in whistle-making is reached, you will probably want to stuff your ears with cotton).

Yes, time spent with your children in developing their love of gardening is going to be time you will never count wasted. It intensifies their love of the outdoors. It gives them active physical labor in the open air. It gives them a satisfying sense of achievement and ownership. It develops responsibility and love of beauty.

By the time you have read this far, you'll know that if I could, I'd give every child a garden plot of his own and I'll wager if it could only be a reality, the coming generation would be much better citizens.

Kiwanis Installs New Officers at Annual Function

D. V. Hock of Pennsylvania
Delivers Address and
Urges That Nation
Come to Alert

The "Clan Kiwanis" of Kingston enjoyed a fine dinner and made merry as it gathered in the crystal room at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday night for the annual installation party of the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

The program for the evening was a varied one and, as always at these affairs, interesting. There were some interludes of a more serious nature, particularly in the address of the evening with its reference to the grave crisis that is being faced by world civilization today, but as a whole it was, and fittingly, a "good time" occasion, with plenty of good humored joking and jesting. The evening closed with dancing to music furnished by Paul Zucca and his orchestra.

Zucca, with Dan Bittner accompanying, also led the singing during the evening, and the guests joined with a will in "packing up their troubles," "working on the railroad" and letting the "rest of the world go by." There was further hint of the "mixed up" condition of the world today in the care with which Paul avoided "copyright" songs for the evening's repertoire.

Boice Presides

Retiring President Pratt Boice presided during most of the activities of the evening. Following the dinner he introduced the guests and later guests at all the tables were introduced. There were a number of visitors, including from outside the city, Walter Lloyd of Poughkeepsie, former state Kiwanis governor and from Newburgh, Major Edward Gibson, president of Newburgh Kiwanis. Dr. and Mrs. C. S. McWilliam and John Cutter. Other prominent guests included Mayor and Mrs. C. J. Heiselman, Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Wicks and former Surgeon and Mrs. George F. Kaufman.

Mr. Boice presented the president's pin to his successor, Joseph F. Deegan, and the latter in accepting, spoke briefly of the objectives, with the idea of service paramount, lacking which its existence was not justified. In turn, Mr. Boice was presented with the past president's pin, the presentation being made by Past President Edward M. Huben, who congratulated Mr. Boice on his fine record during the past year and the faithful service he had given the club.

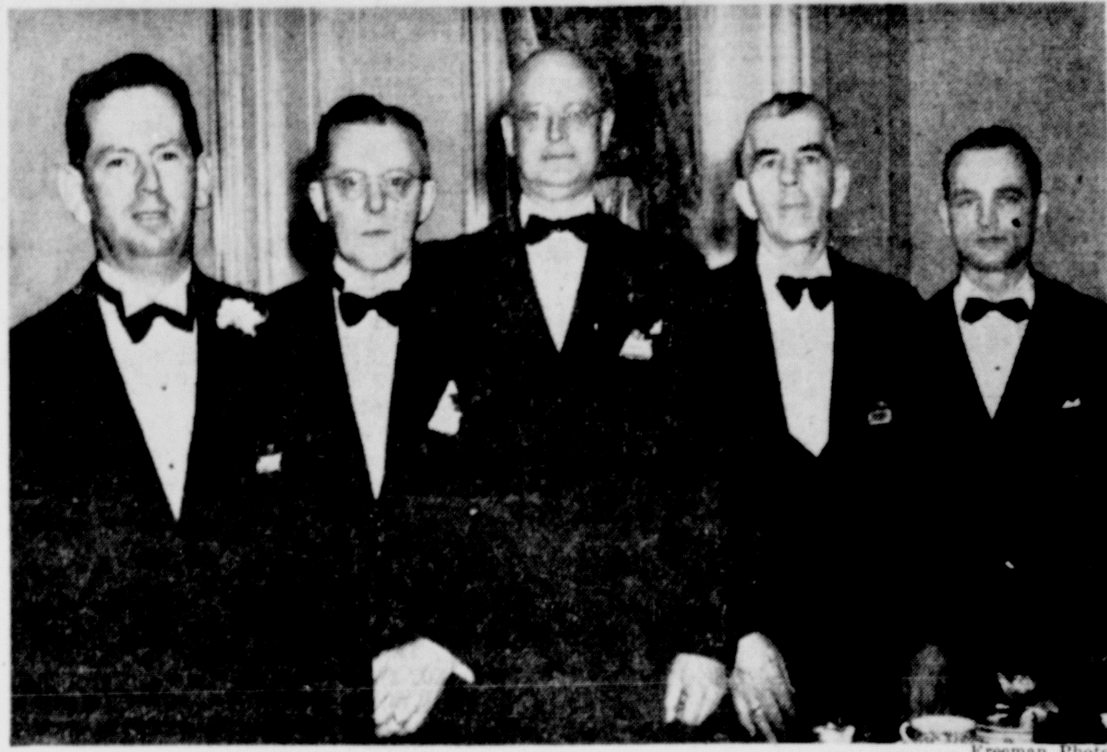

Awards were made to nine members who have had 100 per cent perfect attendance records for the past year or more. A perfect record for the past year was made by Pratt Boice, H. Clinton Finger, Harry du Bois, Frey and Howard R. St. John. Those whose records covered more than one year were George B. Matthews (5), Joseph F. Stout (8), William B. Byrne (9), Paul A. Zucca (11) and R. Frederick Chidsey (15).

Attendance Award

President Deegan asked Ed Huben to make the attendance award presentation to the club's "star," R. Frederick Chidsey, who has the remarkable record of 15 years perfect attendance. In making the award, Mr. Huben referred to Mr. Chidsey's exceptional record as a Kiwanian, including a term as lieutenant-governor and for a number of years past as secretary and general "adviser" of the club. It is a marvelous record, he said—a total of 780 weeks' attendance without a break. When he concluded several waiters appeared bearing aloft large trays on which were further gifts for the honored member. Among them were a fine brief case and a large traveling bag. In addition to all these testimonials, telegrams of congratulation were read from the Kiwanis governor of the state and other state officials.

The installation ceremonies found three participants absent, two of them because of sickness. Edward A. Dolph, lieutenant-governor of Division 2, who was to have installed the officers, was unable to be present because of sickness and for the same reason W. Gordon Burhans, new director, was absent. Henry D. Darrow, vice-president-elect, is on a vacation in Florida.

Kiwanis Installs 1941 Officers

More than 125 Kiwanians and friends attended the annual dinner last evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel where new officers for 1941 were installed. The address of the evening was delivered by Donald V. Hock of Allentown, Pa., former vice president of the Pennsylvania Exchange Clubs. Above are the officers, left to right: Joseph F. Deegan, president; Harry S. Ensign, treasurer; R. Frederick Chidsey, secretary; Pratt Boice, retiring president, and Donald V. Hock.

Roger H. Loughran, past lieutenant, officiated as installing officer, the following being inducted into office: Joseph F. Deegan, president; Pratt Boice, immediate past president; Henry D. Darrow, vice-president; Harry S. Ensign, treasurer; R. Frederick Chidsey, secretary; W. Gordon Burhans, Raymond R. Gross, William F. Leehive, directors, three years.

Hock Is Speaker

The address of the evening, given by Donald V. Hock of Allentown, Pa., past vice president of the Exchange Clubs of Pennsylvania, was well received and was the subject of numerous appreciative comments following its close. Mr. Hock took as his topic "Two sets of Four Horsemen," but an appropriate heading would have been "Wake Up, America." It was a plea for action, for the assumption of responsibility and for making one's life count.

The speaker at the outset quoted a few lines from a poem, "Bad Times," written by Beaumont Newhall, poet of the 17th century, who said "Why slander me the times?" and continued, "It's not the times are bad, but man." To emphasize his point Mr. Hock reviewed the well-known story of Rip Van Winkle, who slept in the Catskills, under the influence of the potent "schnapps," given him by the little men of the mountain and awoke after 20 years to find that during his long nap his fellow men had been fighting and dying in the long struggle for American liberty, while hanging over the door of the old inn, instead of a picture of George III, was the picture of a man named Washington, of whom Rip had never heard. "In my opinion, there are a whole lot of Rip Van Winkles in America today," said the speaker. He added "I feel that we waste too much precious time, effort and ability, trying to awaken them. I wonder if it would not be far better, far more effective in a persuasive sort of way, if we used more of that effort, time and ability, to further the cause today, at a time when you and I must be today's patriots, today's Christians, today's doers. As for me, I like to think that I am a typical young American. Speaking as an American who has registered for the draft, I don't want to sleep through the crisis that is World War No. 2."

"I don't want simply to get by; I want to make the most of this day and age," continued Mr. Hock. "I realize that I was born in the twentieth century and I believe sincerely that I am going to die in it. Once I leave this earth I shall never come back to it. Thousands of generations have gone on before; thousands will follow, but this century is mine. It belongs to me. I want so much to make the most of it and I cannot make the "Men of America, awake! It is up to us—which direction we will take; what course we will follow. It's not the times that are bad—it's man." Ceylon is boosting vehicle taxes.

"Unless you and I ride hard as horsemen of salvation, then I predict that within just a comparatively short time democracy, like the civilization that was Margaret Mitchell's old south, shall have gone with the wind. "Don't tell me that we don't have enough intelligence, enough ability, enough courage, enough determination, enough idealism, to master the problems of our day and age. But surely we cannot succeed, we cannot triumph, by basking in the limelight of a Patrick Henry, a Thomas Jefferson, a George Washington or an Abraham Lincoln. They are dead. Their memories and their ideals live. We are the great and the near great and the little but all-important privates of our day. "This day is ours. "Men of America, awake! It is up to us—which direction we will take; what course we will follow. It's not the times that are bad—it's man." Ceylon is boosting vehicle taxes.

"I needed $130"

"I NEEDED $130 pronto, but was afraid that a chauffeur like myself might not be able to get a loan for that much—or that the payments would be too big for me to handle."

"However I got to talking with one of the fellows at the garage who had a loan at The Personal Finance Company. He told me I probably could get the cash OK, and that between eight and nine dollars a month would be all I'd have to repay on $130."

"I stopped in a nearby Personal office that afternoon and got the loan without any trouble."

An orderly basement, and who doesn't want one, means a place for the articles you naturally keep in the basement—a closet for your tools—a table for your clothes basket—dustless shelves for your fruit and built-in bins for your vegetable storage.

The annoying periodic clean-up drive to keep the basement from chaos is unnecessary with proper basement facilities. Things just automatically stay "put."

Basement improvements are inexpensive. Please let us tell you just how little these important helps will cost.
